Verbatim Products Available Despite Coronavirus Delays

Supplying products to our valued customers on time has always been one of Verbatim's top priorities. Unfortunately, with the recent Coronavirus situation, some of our production sites have been closed for several weeks and we are starting to experience shipment delays.

Verbatim is closely monitoring the situation and we have taken the necessary actions to continue to provide our customers with expected products at expected delivery times. However, we want to make our customers aware of the virus' potential impact in supplying their favorite Verbatim products in the coming weeks.

We will continue to review and monitor our production and make adjustments as necessary to keep our customers supplied.

Verbatim values the strong relationships we have with our customers and appreciates your continued support as we work through this unfortunate circumstance.

For more than 50 years, Verbatim has set the standard for data storage technology, computer peripherals and accessories. Our products include an impressive selection of removable storage and peripherals, including highly acclaimed optical media and award-winning USB flash drives, lightning fast portable hard drives and memory cards.
We constantly seek to expand our product offerings, to bring you, our customers, products that truly enhance your technology experience. Trust Verbatim and you get innovation, security and reliability – and that means peace of mind.
